Overview

For organisations, communication has become ever more challenging in today's climate where the people we need to reach are overloaded.

We know as leaders that we have to connect with the hearts and minds of our people and we have to paint powerful visions of the future that people can identify with and support. We know that in every moment of communication, we need to reach a high level of connection and authenticity if we are to be effective, to be believed, to be followed with enthusiasm and to make a difference.

This interactive workshop is designed to dispel the myths of public speaking, give you the tools you need to improve and then turn the learning into practice. It is a safe to fail learning space consisting of a small group, allowing you the opportunity to experiment with what you have learned and transform your speaking skills.

Key learnings

In this one-day workshop, you will learn how to:

- ∴ develop your own natural speaking style and learn how to use pace, volume and tone in your voice
- ∴ overcome the fear of judgement and project authority and confidence even if you are a little anxious
- ∴ project your own presence and charisma
- ∴ create and deliver content naturally, credibly and effectively
- ∴ understand the 'learning styles' model and how people receive and retain information
- ∴ choose the most effective method of delivery and use PowerPoint in a more engaging way
- ∴ structure and deliver stories that engage and entertain the audience
- ∴ find the 'stickability' element in your presentation so it will be remembered
- ∴ create a striking and lasting impression.
